I chose to draw a pool because it's summer. I made the water in the pool all different colors to show that even though we are all different on the outside we are all the same on the inside because we all want to be loved and respected.
I used the American flag in this poster because we live in America and people can be people in America. There are all different people in the word "Froedtert" because no two people are the same. And in the white stripes, I have examples of dignity and respect.
This picture that I drew is about if you are black or white you should not be treated differently. Everyone should be treated equally.
In my poster, I'm showing people are different from their hobbies, talents, skin, shape and size.
My drawing means a few things to me. First it shows me that all around the world when we treat people with dignity and respect, it makes us happy. Also it makes us happy to receive it. Lastly it shows me no matter what your skin color, age, hair color, or where you live we all deserve to be included and treated with dignity and respect.
I was bullied a lot and moved schools. I got bullied there too. I was afraid to go to school. I feel that it should never happen to anyone.
My drawing represents that even though everyone in this whole world is different, we can still be friends. It doesn't matter what we look like, sound like or what we do. No one on earth is the same, but we learn to love each other.
When I think of the topic 'everyone deserves to be treated with dignity and respect' I think of people of all different races and shapes and personalities getting along. The kids in my drawing are close friends. I think that they learned how to accept their differences and be friends, and also learn to celebrate them instead of shy away from each other.
This drawing is of a poor person with nothing to eat and drink. Someone nice had a sandwich for their lunch but gave it to the poor person. Also both of the people are smiling. This shows both respect and dignity because one person makes the other person smile and not feel different and is showing respect by helping this person out.
My drawing uses a path and along the sides of the path are pictures of tips that help you have dignity and respect. By or on the pictures it says the tip to help explain the picture.
A doctor and a nurse helping a patient.
My poster is two hands joined together despite their different races. We all have differences and that makes us who we are. Everyone should be treated equally and with respect.
